

MENTOR

CORI POWERS

I'm originally from Indiana, but moved to Katy, Texas before high school. I went to college at Texas Tech University, where I studied broadcast journalism. My first job out of school was as a producer at a NBC affiliate in Midland, Texas, which is how I met my husband. After a little over a year in Midland, we decided to try something new and moved to Orlando, Florida. I got a job in tourism at Experience Kissimmee in the Orlando area and loved it. My husband and I had our first daughter in 2018 and decided it was time come back to Texas. We wanted to be closer to family, and we missed Whataburger. In 2020, we moved to Frisco, when I accepted the job of Director of Marketing & Communications at Visit Frisco. Since moving back, we've had a second daughter, bought a house, and are getting involved with the community.
